To Sam Pohl's Future Coach,

I'm writing on the behalf of Sam Pohl, a student athlete that trains with me at the No Quit Tennis Acadmey in Las Vegas, NV. I have been coaching Sam on a daily basis over the last year and have witnessed first hand how hard he works, giving everything he has at each practice. He shows up as a leader to his peers, and is always working at perfecting his craft. We have worked to make him mentality stronger, more strategic and more physical on the court. Further, Sam is a an excellent doubles player with quick hands and loves to execute at the net in both singles and doubles.

I have been coaching and playing professionally for over 40 years. I was able to coach Bob and Mike Bryan to be the best doubles team in the world for 15 years. I also coached John Isner and currently coach Micah Braswell, University of Texas alumni. One thing I noticed in all my years coaching world class tennis players is that they never skip on hard work and discipline. Sam brings these two important qualities with him wherever he goes. I feel that Sam would be a valuable asset to your tennis program. His future is bright and light shines strong. He continually makes his coaches look good.

If you have questions about Sam, I would be more than happy to schedule a call at anytime to discuss my experience working with him. I can't recommend this very nice young man enough.

Sincerely,

Dave Macpherson
